

Rabies vaccine for wild animals

What does the bait look like?

Cases of wildlife rabies have been confirmed in your local area. To stop the spread, we're distributing small bait packets filled with vaccine.

The army-green baits have a waxy coating and resemble a packet of jam. They are labelled Rabies Vaccine.

How are the baits distributed?

Rabies baits are distributed by hand or dropped from the air.

What do I do if I find a bait?

Please leave the bait undisturbed so it may vaccinate local wildlife.

What if my pet eats a bait?

While the baits are not designed to be eaten by livestock or pets, they are not harmful to ingest. These baits will not protect domestic animals against rabies.
